

Jouf University communication policy with graduates

There is a relationship between the student and the university during his studies, and this relationship should continue and be invested after his graduation. The success of the graduate in his scientific and practical life gives a true picture of what the university offers to its students during their studies. Jouf University seeks, through the Department of Graduates in the Deanship of Student Affairs, to establish channels of live communication with graduates, to complement what was built to ensure fruitful exchange between them and the university.

Politics:

Jouf University communicates permanently and purposefully with its graduates and ensures their continuous participation and future support for the various activities of the university and its comprehensive institutional development, and the alumni units in the colleges, in coordination with the alumni administration, play their role in effective communication with graduates and ensuring its continuity through appropriate mechanisms and means.
